

Amusements To-Night.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE—Exhibition
BUD OPERA HOUSE—S—“The Sorcerer.”
BOOTH’S THEATRE—S—“The Romany Rye.”
BUNNELL’S MUSEUM—Curiosities.
DAILY’S THEATRE—S—“The Squire.”
FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE—S—“Virginia.”
GRAND OPERA HOUSE—S—“Rip Van Winkle.”
HATHAWAY’S 14TH STREET THEATRE—S—“The Black Cook.”
HENDESON’S STANDARD THEATRE—S—“Rip Van Winkle.”
HELBEL’S GARDEN—S—Vokes Family.
SAN FRANCISCO OPERA HOUSE—S—San Francisco Shows.
TELEGRAPH THEATRE—“Tammie Muzza.”
THEATRE COMIQUE—S—Mordicai Lyons.
UNION SQUARE THEATRE—S—“Brighton.”
WALLACK’S THEATRE—S—“As You Like It.”
WINDSOR THEATRE—Jahnschek.

Index to Advertisements.

ADVERTISEMENTS—3d Page—5th and 6th columns.
ADMIRALTY—3d Page—5th column.
ADMIRALTY REPORTS—3d Page—5th column.
BOARD-WANTED—7th Page—4th column.
BUSINESS CHANCES—3d Page—5th column.
BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT—4th Page—1st column.
DANCING ACADEMIES—6th Page—2nd column.
DIVIDEND NOTICES—7th Page—5th column.
DRESS MAKERS—7th Page—6th column.
EUROPEAN ADVERTISEMENTS—6th Page—5d column.
FIRE INSURANCE—7th Page—2d and 3d columns.
HELP WANTED—7th Page—4th column.
HORSES, CARRIAGES, &c.—3d Page—5th column.
INSTRUCTION—7th Page—5th column.
LAWYERS AND MEETINGS—3d Page—6th column.
LEGAL NOTICES—6th Page—3d column.
LOST AND FOUND—6th Page—3d column.
MINING STOCKS—Page—5th column.
MINING STOCKS—6th Page—5th column; 6th Page—5th
6th and 6th columns.
MARRIAGE AND DEATHS—5th Page—6th column.
MECHANICAL INVENTIONS—6th Page—5th column.
NEWSPAPER STAMPS—6th Page—1st column.
GENERAL NEWS—7th Page—4th and 5th columns.
REAL ESTATE—3d Page—4th and 5th columns.
SUBSCRIPTIONS—WANTED—7th Page—4th column.
STOCK EXCHANGES—4th Page—4th column.
STRAINS AND RAILROADS—7th Page—5th and 6th columns.
SPECIAL NOTICES—5th Page—6th column.
TERMS OF PAYMENT—3d Page—2d column.
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—3d Page—5th column.

Business Notices.

“ALDERNEY BRAND” CONDENSED MILK.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE

Postage Free in the United States
DAILY TRIBUNE, 1 year ..... $12.00
DAILY TRIBUNE (WEEKLY SUNDAYS), 1 year ..... 10.00
DAILY TRIBUNE, 2 years ..... 20.00
WEEKLY TRIBUNE, 1 year ..... 2.00
ELMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE, 1 year ..... 3.00
Remittances to be made by Post Office or in registered letter
Address, THE TRIBUNE, New-York.

BRANCH OFFICES OF THE TRIBUNE
WASHINGTON—No. 1,322 F St.
LONDON—No. 25, 3rd Floor, Strand
PARIS—No. 9 Rue des Grands-Augustins

New-York Daily Tribune.

FOUNDED BY HORACE GREELEY

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1882.

THE NEWS THIS MORNING.

FOREIGN.—Thirty lives have been lost by the sounding off the French coast of the steamer Winton. The Italian Parliament was opened yesterday; the speech from the throne was pacific in tone. The captain of a schooner at Halifax has been killed by one of his crew. More anti-Semitic outrages have occurred in Austria. Public sentiment in the Island of Jamaica is strongly against the Gladstone Government on account of an act of the Colonial Secretary.

DOMESTIC.—An express train on the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis Railroad was designedly thrown from the track near Union Station, Ohio; several persons were injured. An accident occurred yesterday at the Oxford Colliery, near Scranton, Penn., by which several miners were killed and others injured. Two Buffalo banks were swindled through drafts which had been raised. The Franklin Insurance Company, of Boston, yesterday voted to close business. The New-Hartford Cotton Company’s mill, New-Hartford, N. Y., was burned yesterday. The Pioneer Foundry and five other buildings in Burlington, Vt., were burned.

Two additional appointments by the Board of Trustees of the Andover Theological Seminary were announced yesterday. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has recently given large orders for rolling stock. Pittsburgh manufacturers do not take a gloomy view of the steel and iron trade. Fires occurred yesterday at Calais and Lewis ton, Me.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.—Thurlow Weed died a few minutes before 9 o’clock yesterday morning. Further testimony was taken in the case of Henry Prout Cooper. The trial of Jessie Maillard was continued. Abraham Marks, the lawyer, was sentenced to thirty days’ imprisonment for contempt of court. The County Democracy held a meeting to reprobate over the result of the election. A meeting of the Park Commissioners took place. Gold value of the legal-tender silver dollar (412½ grains), 36.37 cents. Stocks, after opening at higher figures, were lower and feverish, but later improved and closed near the best figures of the day.

THE WEATHER.—TRIBUNE local observations indicate clear and fair weather, with higher temperature. Temperature yesterday: Highest, 41°; lowest, 27°; average 33½°.

Our Washington dispatches this morning will be found to contain some interesting speculations concerning the treatment which those two burning questions, the Tariff and Tax Reduction, are likely to receive at the next session of Congress. The probable position of the President and Secretary Folger on the questions is also glanced at.

However the wretched case of Jessie Maillard may result, the District-Attorney’s office will hardly come out of it with credit. Mr. Fellows has introduced a novelty in criminal procedure. He allows a witness of the worst reputation to spend the evening with a private detective employed by the complainant, to go with him to the theatre and to drink wine with him, when she ought to be in the House of Detention.

A good example is contagious. A telegram from Montreal brings the interesting announcement that Canada is likely to say ditto to New-York by freeing her more important canals. With free canals in this great State and free canals over the border, it cannot be long in the nature of things before the new policy will prevail all over the country. Those who made the long fight for the policy in our Legislature and at the ballot-box perhaps builded broader than they knew.

The season is at hand when all New-York feels unusually charitable—when the poor who are always with us are generously remembered. There is reason for general congratulation, therefore, that a wretched scoundrel who has been engaged in swindling the humane in the sacred name of charity should be unmasked and rendered powerless for further depredations of this infamous sort for some time to come. When a person gets so lost to all sense of right and decency as to use aounding asylum for a decoy duck it is high time he had forced upon him the seclusion that Sing Sing grants.

Persons who have been pitying the residents of Fifth-ave. because trade was making such strides among their fine houses will be surprised to learn that the people living in this fashionable street do not object to having stores near them—not even grocery stores.

This is particularly the case in the neighborhood of Central Park, where a well-known firm of grocers is putting up a large building for the purposes of their business. Undoubtedly such a shop will be a convenience to residents of the upper part of the city, but unprejudiced observers will think it would have been just as much of a convenience and less of an eyesore if it had been a block or two further to the east.

Judge Larremore yesterday gave Abraham Marks thirty days in the city jail. Mr. Marks is the lawyer who lately struck a fellow-practitioner in open court, so we take it that this action of the Judge will command itself to all the members of the bar of the metropolis who are opposed to seeing a temble of justice turned into a bear-garden. A court that does not promptly punish all assaults upon its own dignity cannot expect to command the respect of those that practice before it who have a correct appreciation of order and decorum. It was long ago decided in the famous Society upon the Stanislaus that it was not the proper thing for one of the members “to whale a fellow-man,” and certainly such an offence is still more reprehensible when committed under the shadow of the ermine. We congratulate Judge Larremore, and trust that in his enforced retirement from the profession during the next month Mr. Marks may be cured of the folly of allowing an angry temper to express itself in unhandsome overt acts.

George Bliss has been unbosoming himself once more in relation to the reorganization of the Republican party in this city. It is a subject which doubtless has the attraction of repulsion for Mr. Bliss, since he is well aware that everybody knows it was due in large measure to him that an effort looking to such reorganization came to grief last year. A reformer who clamors for reform vigorously in the off months of the political year, but who is found skulking just as soon as a golden opportunity appears to accomplish the very thing he has been demanding, is not quite as impressive a curiosity as Niagara or the Yosemite. Perhaps Mr. Bliss intends the suggestions which he has been making of late touching reorganization as a contribution to the conscience fund of the party. If so there will be a general disposition to afford him time and space for repentence.

The one argument for the repeal of taxes on these luxuries is that reduction somewhere is exceedingly desirable. After abolishing the minor taxes and the taxes on dealers, in all about $30,000,000, there will still remain a surplus revenue of $90,000,000 to $120,000,000, and it is feared that it cannot be properly reduced without interfering with the protective character of the tariff. Persons who know nothing about the subject generally imagine that a repeal of any duty on imports must render the tariff less protective. But manufacturers know better. It is to be hoped that the Tariff Commission will have the intelligence to point out many ways in which duties can be reduced or removed, and the tariff be thereby rendered in every sense more truly and efficiently protective.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have already been incalculable. In the face of the good so easily and smoothly accomplished, there is no whisper of disapproval or even of satire in England. Harvard is wealthy and could have well afforded to follow the dignified and liberal example of the English universities. Instead of that she has only permitted the women students to huddle in their matron guides, and when the lecture is over are taken back to hall without any unpleasant or degrading consequences. The mere listening in the same room with young men to the eloquent and profound discourse of a professor has not been found demoralizing to either sex.

The English system involves no social meetings whatever with the male students, and the admirable results in the intellectual training of women, and the consequent improvement of the schools wherein many become teachers, have